

Dear FCC:

I strongly support Net Neutrality backed by Title II oversight of ISP's, and I urge you to do the same.

Consider this example: internet is like telephone service. Your phone service is required to connect all your calls to the best of their ability. They can't give clearer connections or priority to some calls over the other. So even if your telephone service owns Domino's Pizza, they still have to connect your calls to Pizza Hut, Papa John's, and Famous Original Ray's Pizza. That just makes sense.

So with net neutrality, your internet service provider should give you the same connection to whatever website you want. If net neutrality is revoked, then your internet service provider can give you a fast connection to their own movie-streaming site while slowing down your connection to competing movie-streaming sites. Essentially, without net neutrality, they can choose your sites instead of you. This is messed up. Please support Net Neutrality backed by Title II oversight of ISP's.
